Introduction

Before you look at this list of suppliers, we should cover a few things with you first...

There is two Lists of China Suppliers listed in this Report.

- The first list lists are the China Drop Shipping Wholesale Websites We have dealt with, that you can use to purchased Single or Small quantity of goods from China. I recommended that you read my China Wholesale Reviews before dealing with them.
- The second lists are List of China Suppliers, Manufacturers, and Importers that will bring your business to the Next Level. I have researched these suppliers through help of some of my friends in the business and verifying through third party websites.

Lastly, I want to make it clear that I am in no way responsible for any problems that occur between you and the suppliers listed, or any money that you lose from dealing with these suppliers. FREE WILL is the words my friends and it is a Gift to us so use it wisely.

But if you do ever have any problems with any of these suppliers, please let me know and I will update this list accordingly. I am always monitoring these situations to make sure that this list maintains its value, and of course, I do not want anybody to get ripped off.

Most importantly, I want you to succeed!

Start Drop Shipping from China

If want to start a Drop Shipping Business finding the right supplier for your products is one key elements for this business. With the help of the internet is it easier for individuals to purchase small or even single quantity of products direct from China.

In principle, Chinese suppliers probably won't have any problems sending goods to your customers. If they can already send samples or packages to your address, then why not to someone else's? The key really is finding suppliers with a low enough minimum order quantity. Even if you find a supplier with a MOQ of 10 pieces you may be able to drop-ship 5 of those to your customers and the others to yourself as a sort of combination of dropshipping and holding inventory. Or some suppliers may let you pay in advance for say 100 pieces and then ship them in small batches to different locations later.

The perfect situation is to find a Chinese supplier who can reliably and efficiently dropship single item packages anywhere in the world. If you approach Chinese suppliers and simply ask "do you drop-ship?" you may not get very clear answers because they may not understand the question.

Here are my suggestions for the questions you can ask your possible Chinese suppliers:

1. Do you have a minimum order quantity? Can I order one piece at a time?
2. Can you ship to country?
3. Is it OK to ship directly to my customers?

4. If you ship to my customers can you also provide me with invoices?
5. If you shipped directly to my customers could you guarantee that your packages and invoice would not identify your company? (This is one of the hardest things!)
6. Would you be able to label the packages and invoice with my own company name / logo? If so would you charge an extra fee for this?
7. If I order 20 pieces but ship to 20 different addresses, how can I do this? Do I have to make 20 separate orders? And if so do I still get the 20 piece quantity discount?

You will also need to discuss shipping options:

- what method of shipping
- how to quote / pay
- how fast
- how to get tracking details
- how to deal with customs and taxes
- how to deal with delivery problems
- how to deal with returns

Obviously some of these things you will work out as you go along, but it's a good idea to think about some of the issues that are likely to arise so you can prepare yourself.

Tips for Successful Drop-Shipping from China

- It may seem obvious, but please check with your supplier whether they can dropship, before attempting to place a dropship order! Don't dive into dropshipping and sell something to a customer, and THEN start asking your supplier if / how they can dropship. Do your homework!
- Don't make promises about delivery time to your customers until you have tried the supplier and you know they can deliver in the way you want.
- Under no circumstances drop-ship items that you have never seen. Your first order should be to yourself to inspect the goods and assess the supplier's service. This will also let you get an idea of the import tax situation for this particular product.
- Follow my good communication tips for Chinese suppliers. Make requests not demands.

Tips: Register to Newsletter of each China Wholesale Websites that I will give you in these lists, so that you can always be updated for the new items and Discounts for each supplier. Or better Check updates for Discounts, coupon codes and new products here>>

Start Importing from China

(How to Contact Manufacturers in China)

Chinese manufacturers will treat you a certain way, based on how good a businessperson they think you are. If you seem like a chucklehead, they're going to treat you like a chucklehead.

Here's what that means. If you act like just the blind idiot walking through the door, they're going to totally ignore you, because they assume you're just full of crap anyway and aren't going to buy anything.

One of the things that I really suggest you do is starting to use your fax machine a lot. You need letter head, they respect letter head like we used to here 50 years ago. In the States, it used to be, if you wanted to buy whole sale from a company, they would tell you to send them a letter on your letter head. In China, it is still very formal like that and what they are doing is just testing if you are legitimate business if you send them a fax message.

And people who have used Alibaba, "I send 100 emails and they never replied back to me". Send a fax and you will get a reply within 24 hours, I can almost guarantee it. They respond much, much, much better to fax. And after your fax you can actually call them using Skype (we use Skype a lot). If you don't have Skype, it is a free voice communication tool, if you just go to skype.com, it is totally-free, and it is very self-explanatory.

But almost every Chinese factory has a Skype account, so you can go to Skype and call the Chinese factory and talk to them in an unlimited amount of time for free. But I would really start off with a fax letter and I will have that letter written by someone else, not you saying, "My boss has asked that I request this formal quote of etc, etc".

There's a company called www.Fax87.com. If you don't have a fax machine, you can go there for about five dollars a month – or something like that – and get a fax number where you can send and receive faxes. They'll just literally send your faxes to your e-mail account in a PDF form.

You're going to use faxing for all of your orders. Every order you ever place is going to be placed by fax, so you're going to have to have faxing in order to make it work long term. So, that's online sourcing.

Ask them a lot of questions about whether or not they're reputable. You should ask them their factory location: "Where is your factory located? Are you the prime owner of the factory or a broker? Can you send me a prospectus on your company? What is your annual turnover?" That's a big question. We don't use that in the States at all. Annual turnover in China is "How much are your annual sales?" A big pride issue in China is how much they sell.

Also, ask them if they have a stateside warehouse. If they do, you probably don't want to do business with them because they're probably going to become your competitor. That's not always true, but a lot of times it's true.
